FOREWORD

In its continuing quest to improve the coordination among agencies that provide services to migrant and seasonal farmworkers and their families, the Office of Migrant Education of the U.S. Department of Education is providing you with a copy of the 1997 Directory of Services for Migrant and Seasonal Farmworkers and Their Families.

Coordination is key to improving opportunities and services to migrant children and their families. Agencies are collaborating in creative ways at the state and local levels. This directory is designed to promote further cooperation and a greater knowledge of the breadth and scope of programs and services for migrant children and their families.

The Office of Elementary and Secondary Education's Office of Migrant Education encourages practitioners working with migrant children and their families to continue to work together to improve services to our customers and to share the results of those efforts with each other. The Office of Migrant Education is actively seeking examples of collaborative efforts that can be replicated from locality to locality. It is through these efforts that we can integrate services to more effectively identify and assist migrant families.

We hope this Directory will assist in the expansion of coordination activities to the benefit of migrant families throughout the nation.

Bayla F. White
Director
Office of Migrant Education

INTRODUCTION

Federal programs and national organizations that serve migrant farmworkers and their families share a common goal: to improve the effectiveness of programs in meeting the needs of migrant children and their families. Factors related to mobility, seasonal work patterns, and the lack of resources in the areas where migrants work and live make it difficult for migrant families to receive a continuous level of high quality services. Recognizing that the key to the successful delivery of services lies in better coordination among health, education, early childhood, housing, employment, environmental, community service, and legal agencies, the U.S. Department of Education has compiled this directory.

This publication is a revised version of the Directory, last published in the fall of 1995. It is the result of a cumulative effort of the programs represented within and is intended to provide information on the various services for migrants. It has been expanded to include new federal and non-federal programs, as well as several new directories of field offices for those programs. The Directory is written for informational purposes and is not intended to provide legal guidance concerning statutes and regulations related to services for migrants.

The U.S. Department of Education plans to update and distribute this publication periodically. If you have any suggestions or would like additional copies of this directory, please write us at:

NSLP also reimburses eligible elementary and secondary schools for serving snacks to children in school-aged child care programs who are 12 years of age and under; or 15 years of age and under in the case of children of migrant workers or children with disabilities.

CHILD AND ADULT CARE FOOD PROGRAM

Purpose: The Child and Adult Care Food Program (CACFP) combines resources, training, and accountability to support quality child care in family day care homes, day care centers, Head Start programs, and outside-school-hours care centers. The program provides meals to children 12 years of age and under, children of migrant workers 15 years of age and under, and persons with disabilities who are enrolled in a day care facility where a majority of the enrollment is 18 years of age and under.

Administered by: State agencies administer CACFP in 54 states or territories, except in Virginia, where the Food and Consumer Service's Mid-Atlantic Regional Office administers the program.

SUMMER FOOD SERVICE PROGRAM

Purpose: The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) serves as an extension of the National School Lunch Program. Generally, a site is determined eligible if at least 50 percent of the children in the area it serves, or 50 percent of its enrolled children, are eligible for free and reduced price school meals. Site eligibility can also be established with certification from a migrant organization that a particular site serves children of migrant workers. Sites which primarily serve children from migrant families may be approved to serve up to three meals each day. Once a site is determined eligible, all meals are served free of charge to any child age 18 and under. In residential camps, however, meals are eligible for reimbursement only when served to children who qualify for free and reduced price meals.

Administered by: State agencies administer SFSP in 49 states or territories, while Food and Consumer Service's regional offices administer the program in Georgia, Michigan, New York, and Virginia.
